

Thank you for visiting!

If you are interested in obtaining or producing your own biofuels in the Sacramento, California region, you've found the right place. This site will gather news and resources on the local biofuels scene for the benefit of fuel users, producers and the planet. If you want to become part of this exciting community, please register with us!

Putting together this community takes quite a bit of effort; all the effort is being done on a volunteer basis. The web site hosting and maintenance also takes a bit of money. We would be happy to get some support through volunteers (to provide web content and to moderate submissions) as well as through donations and sponsorships. Please contact the web site administrator if you are able to help.

Sacramento BioFuels Goals:

- Educate the community about the need for alternative fuels
- Provide support for manufacturing renewable fuels
- Build up a network for distributing renewable fuels